Wunderflats Brussels-Launch With 500+ Furnished Apartments Connecting International Professionals and Private Landlords

Brussels, February 25, 2026 – Brussels is one of Europe's most international labor markets, yet finding housing from abroad remains slow and often restrictive. Wunderflats, the leading European platform for furnished mid-term rentals, has launched operations in the Belgian capital, simplifying the process for professionals relocating to the heart of Europe.

Operational Infrastructure for a Mobile Workforce

Home to the EU, NATO, and a vast ecosystem of international organizations, Brussels sees continuous cross-border mobility. Wunderflats arrives with an initial portfolio of more than 500-ready-move-in apartments, establishing a high-quality housing infrastructure for consultants, researchers, and public-sector professionals who relocate on fixed-term assignments in Europe's most international city.

Wunderflats enables professionals to book fully furnished apartments for one month or longer through a secure, fully digital process. Identity and solvency checks, transparent contracts, and verified listings provide reliability for both tenants and landlords.

Strengthening the Private Rental Market

Beyond working with professional operators, Wunderflats aims to activate private apartment owners in Brussel. The platform offers a model centered on flexibility and security. It allows landlords to retain control over rental periods and availability while offering predictable income and a rigorous tenant verification process.

"In a globalized workforce, a local payslip is a narrow way to measure a great tenant. Many international professionals are sidelined simply because they lack local paperwork. At Wunderflats, we look at the bigger picture, using a structured, digital verification process so landlords can confidently welcome highly qualified tenants from day one," says Gabriel Brüser, Managing Director Belgium & France, Wunderflats.

Standardized Verification for International Professionals

The platform provides a digital-first, safe environment that eliminates the discrimination and complexity often found in traditional long-term rentals. By offering "turnkey" living, Wunderflats allows people to settle in immediately and focus on their mission in Brussels from day one.

“As the political and institutional center of Europe, Brussels especially relies on global talents,” says Jan Hase, CEO of Wunderflats. “Yet, the traditional housing market hasn’t kept pace with how international professionals live and work today. Launching in Belgium is a major milestone in our vision to enable people to live and work anywhere across Europe, creating a secure and transparent experience for both tenants and landlords.”

Strategic European Growth

Belgium becomes the fourth pillar in Wunderflats’ EU growth strategy, joining Germany, Austria, and France. The company now lists more than 50,000 apartments across Europe.

About Wunderflats

Wunderflats helps people find fully furnished homes for a month or more, perfect for relocations, family moves, or life transitions. It offers a secure and seamless rental experience across Europe.

Founded in Berlin in 2015 by Jan Hase and Arkadi Jampolski, Wunderflats bridges the gap between verified landlords and carefully vetted tenants. As part of Europe’s housing infrastructure, it helps activate underutilized apartments and support the evolving ways people live and work today. The company employs a team of over 150 people.
